2010-2011 PTSA Officers Needed

We have many board positions that need to be filled for next school year in order for Meeker PTSA to continue to provide functions/benefits to our students. Our open positions include a Co-President, Vice President, Treasurer, and Secretary. Please contact Suzette @ 253-852-6797, or Mariann @ mariannah@kallaher.org for more information on how you can make a difference in the lives of our students.

Jamba Juice Cards

Don't forget to swipe your School Appreciation Card the next time you are at Jamba Juice. Every time you do, Jamba Juice will donate 10% of your purchase to Meeker and 2% to National PTA. This card works much the same way as the Albertsons Community Partners card did -- there is no cost to you. More cards are available in the Meeker front office.

Come to our Book Fair Diner - All You Can Read!

Dates: March 8-12

Hours: 8:00am-3:30pm

Family Night: Tuesday, March 9 from 6-8pm. Refreshments will be served!

One for Books: Donate $1 to the One for Books campaign and be entered into a drawing for a free poster. All proceeds, including the money collected for One for Books, go directly to buying books for the Meeker Library.

PTA Meeting Schedule

In lieu of our February 23rd PTSA meeting, we volunteered at the Kent Area Council PTA Clothing Bank. We served many families that rely on the clothing bank to provide clothing for their school age children. Thank you to everyone that helped! Our schedule for the remainder of the year is:

March 16th

April 20th

May 18th

June 15th

Everyone is invited and encouraged to attend our meetings in the library at 7:00pm.

PREVENTION INTERVENTION SPECIALIST

MIXING ALCOHOL AND ENERGY DRINKS MAKES FOR A DANGEROUS BREW

A University of Florida study has found that mixing energy drinks and alcohol is an especially dangerous combination that makes people more likely to get drunk faster, stay drunk longer, and drive drunk. Mixing alcohol with energy drinks is a practice that has become so popular with college-age drinkers that researchers have come up with an acronym for it: AMED, alcohol-mixed-with-energy-drinks.

The study was conducted by Dennis Thombs, Ph.D. and his team of researchers who interviewed 800 patrons as they exited college-area bars and parties between the hours of 10 p.m. and 3 a.m. Researchers asked participants about what they drank, how much they drank, how long they had been drinking, whether they intended to drive – and also checked their breath alcohol concentration levels.

Wide-awake and roaring drunk

In an article published by WebMD, Thombs reported that participants who drank energy cocktails had an average breath alcohol reading of 0.109 – considerably higher than the legal driving limit of 0.08. For those who drank only alcohol, the average breath alcohol concentration was 0.081.

"Often, students drink energy drinks because they are tired and don't start until late and want to have enough energy," Thombs told WebMD. "Combining energy drinks and alcohol can trick the brain, making people think they're sober, or sober enough, when they're not."

Many people think that the caffeine in energy drinks will counteract the effects of alcohol, but it does just the opposite – caffeine actually aggravates intoxication. Mixing energy drinks and alcohol essentially makes people wide awake and very drunk – and that's a dangerous combination that makes people feel like they can drink more and still attempt to drive home.

NURSE

This letter is to inform parents of students in grades 5, 7, and 9 that as of July 26, 2009 the Washington State Legislature has repealed the law requiring scoliosis screening. Since school nurses will no longer be screening students, we would like to provide you with some information about scoliosis.

Scoliosis is an abnormal curve of the spine, which may go unnoticed during the active, growing years. The symptoms of scoliosis are uneven musculature on one side of the spine. This may look like a rib hump, a prominent shoulder blade, one shoulder may be higher than the other, or the hips may be uneven. Most scoliosis goes undetected and does not cause any problems; however, occasionally it can be bad enough to require medical intervention.

With this change in school health screening we would encourage you to ask your family health care provider to check your child for scoliosis at his/her next health visit. If you have any questions or concerns please feel free to contact me at 253-373-7284.

Building Character

Help your middle schooler develop leadership skills

Many people think of a leader as one who gives direction. To some extent, that is true. But real leadership--a desirable character trait--has more to do with listening, learning and being an example.

Your child can develop leadership if she is:

- Caring. Effective leaders care. They look for someone who could use help. And then they step up.
- Open to new ideas. Leaders know they don't know it all. They always listen to others.
- Organized. Leaders plan ahead. They know that leaving projects to the last minute usually produces poor results.
- Optimistic. Leaders prepare. They trust the people they work with. They are enthusiastic. They expect things to go right and because of their leadership, things usually do.
- Flexible. Leaders don't get stuck in the rut of doing everything the same way every time. They are willing to try new things.

Homework/Study Skills

Soothe your child's homework headaches with routines, quiet

Research shows that studying at home can help your middle schooler perform better at school. Does your child have good homework habits? Now is a great time to reevaluate your child's homework routine.

To reinforce homework habits:

- Choose a central location. Whether it's a desk in his room or a spot at the kitchen table, pick a work zone for your child. Keep it quiet, well lit and stocked with supplies. If he works in the family room, enforce a "no TV or radio during study time" rule for others in your home.
- Stick around. Don't hover as your preteen works. But do be available to offer praise or encouragement. It'll show that his schoolwork matters to you.
- Set a limit. Allow a certain amount of time for studying each night--about 45--75 minutes for middle schoolers. No homework? He can use the time to study or read.
- Designate a start time. If possible, have your child begin working at the same time every evening. Just be flexible when necessary.
- Be a good role model. Use your preteen's study time to complete your own quiet activities. Read a magazine, answer email or balance the checkbook while he gets his work done.

Building Respect

Impress upon your child the reasons for being respectful

You have probably talked many times with your child about how to treat others. But have you had a good discussion about why? Middle school students are ready for a higher level of thinking. So it is important that they know the reasons behind the action. Here are the reasons for being respectful:

- Respectful behavior is moral and ethical. It's the difference between right and wrong.
- Respectful behavior is fair. Rude and disruptive behavior is not fair. The person it is directed at does not deserve it. No one does. It is also not fair to the people around who are trying to teach and learn.
- Respectful behavior is rewarded. Your child will benefit from a reputation as a respectful, kind and polite person. Respectful people are often chosen as leaders. They receive greater responsibilities and freedoms. Why? Because it is already clear that they know how to treat others. They are the kind of people others look up to.

Parent Quiz

Are you helping your child handle peer pressure?

Take this quiz to see if you are providing your child with strategies to resist peer temptation to try things that may be harmful or wrong for her. Answer yes or no to the questions below:

- ___ 1. Have you made your family values clear to your child? "Smoking is a health risk we do not condone in our family."
- ___ 2. Do you practice role-playing different ways to say no with your child?
- ___ 3. Do you urge your child to say no with conviction? This is an occasion when it is okay to be rude or walk away.
- ___ 4. Do you tell your child to blame you? "It sounds like fun. But I can't do it--my mom is so strict!"
- ___ 5. Do you focus on the lesson? Your child may slip, but you can discuss what she learned and plan for how to avoid the problem in future.

How well are you doing?

Mostly yes answers mean you are actively helping your child deal with negative peer pressure. For no answers, try those ideas in the quiz.

Applications now available for Kent-Meridian Technology Academy

Applications for incoming 9th grade students wishing to enroll in the Kent-Meridian Technology Academy for the 2010-11 school year are now available at the school office or online at the KMTA website. Applications are due no later than April 30 and may be returned to the school office or sent directly to KMTA at Kent-Meridian High School. Space is limited. Students will be selected from the applicants through a lottery process and notified of acceptance by May 10.

The Kent-Meridian Technology Academy is a highly successful Kent School District School of Choice located at Kent-Meridian High School and serving students in grades 9 – 12. Students enroll in the Academy from across the district to take advantage of today's technology in applying 21st Century skills in a small learning community environment. All Technology Academy students are issued a district-provided laptop to use in their education at school and at home for the entire school year. Students who stay with KMTA to their junior and senior years will be able to select International Baccalaureate (IB) classes as part of their Technology Academy experience.
